FANTASY DRAMA

Game of Thrones

Monday, Sky Atlantic HD, 9pm

What does the future hold for siblings and lovers Cersei and Jaime Lannister?

A house

From the very first episode of Game of Thrones, the love story between Cersei Lannister and her brother Jaime has been a source of controversy and clamour.

It began with Jaime pushing Bran Stark from a Winterfell tower when the youngster discovered the siblings' incestuous relationship. Now, as the series nears its end, what will become of Cersei and Jaime, those star-crossed lovers?

In this season, we have seen Jaime leave a pregnant Cersei to arrive at Winterfell to fight the Army of the Dead, causing his furious sister to enlist Bronn to murder Jaime and Tyrion with the same crossbow the latter used to kill their father Tywin.

Since then, Jaime has knighted Brienne, apologised to Bran, and bravely fought the White Walkers. But you didn't really think he would forego Cersei altogether, did you? This, after all, is the woman who once described their relationship as, 'More than brother and sister. We are one person in two bodies.'

We spoke to Nikolaj Coster-Waldau, 48, who plays Jaime, about what's in store for the Lannisters and their forbidden love…

Has Jaime really put Cersei behind him? He certainly had at the beginning of this season. Even though he's known as the most dishonourable man, he is a man of his word. He told Tyrion that he would fight the Night King and that promise was very important to him. But Jaime's always been dedicated to Cersei. His whole life has been about serving her and her safety.

Cersei asked Bronn to kill Jaime and Tyrion. How will that affect his feelings towards her? Jaime has only ever been with this one woman. There's a very strong physical attraction and that has always driven him a little crazy. Also, their whole emotional connection has been so twisted. Is that going to change? Remember, this is one of the few true love stories in Game of Thrones.

It's a very strange kind of love story, isn't it? There's an obvious wrongness to their relationship, but many people are attracted to someone they shouldn't be. Okay, not your sister, but someone you really shouldn't fall in love with – like your best friend's girlfriend. But the thing is, it's not an equal relationship. I think Jaime's always been the one wanting Cersei and not truly being able to get her.

Jaime's turned out to have more of a moral compass than we might have expected. Has that surprised you? Well, I always knew the truth behind why he killed the Mad King, but viewers didn't really get to understand him until that scene with Brienne in the bathtub. And I also understood why he pushed Bran out of the window and why he attacked Ned Stark in the street. He's very loyal to his family and he will do anything to protect the people he loves. His whole life has been as a soldier and it's a hard, brutal, unsentimental world. He lost his innocence over the years and became very cynical.

What was the turning point in his change of character? Meeting Brienne and encountering that kind of innocence, but also her extreme belief in doing the right thing and being honourable. That reminded him of what he was. He's been different since then.

What one new skill will you take away from Game of Thrones? I can handle myself with a sword – not that it will come in handy that much. Jaime was an amazing warrior, so I had to learn a lot of choreography, then later I had to learn how to fight left-handed, too.

What was your final day on set like? It was the perfect ending to my whole experience of being on this show. It was a beautiful day in Northern Ireland, it was a great crew, and there were some great scenes.

Did you get a good send-off? There were quite a few farewell speeches when we'd finished and I remember thinking, 'Why are people getting so emotional? It's ridiculous. I'm way too hard for that.' But then they gave me this beautiful little framed storyboard from the scene in season two when Jaime's hand was chopped off, and I teared up. I hadn't expected to feel like that but it was special.

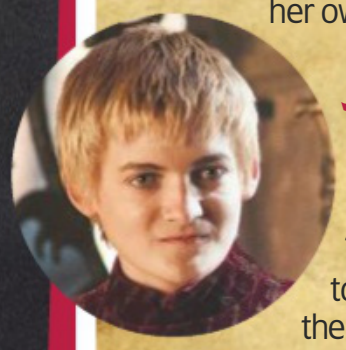
LAST OF THE LANNISTERS

The family has met with some terrible deaths over the years. Here, we recall the most memorable exits...

MYRCELLA

Cersei's daughter died in her father Jaime's arms after Ellaria Sand kissed her tenderly farewell, having coated her own lips with poison.



JOFFREY

Cersei and Jaime's eldest son was also poisoned, by Olenna Tyrell at his wedding to her granddaughter, the ambitious Margaery.

TYWIN

After the family patriarch slept with Shae, Tyrion finally snapped and killed his father with a crossbow as he sat on the toilet.

ALTON

Jaime beat his own cousin to death to help him escape imprisonment by the Stark army.

LANCEL

Cersei's cousin and former lover was killed by her wildfire destruction of the Sept, after being stabbed by one of Qyburn's 'little birds'.

KEVAN

Lancel's father, Tywin's brother, also perished in the blast. His youngest sons Martyn and Willem had already been murdered by Rickard Karstark at Riverrun.

TOMMEN

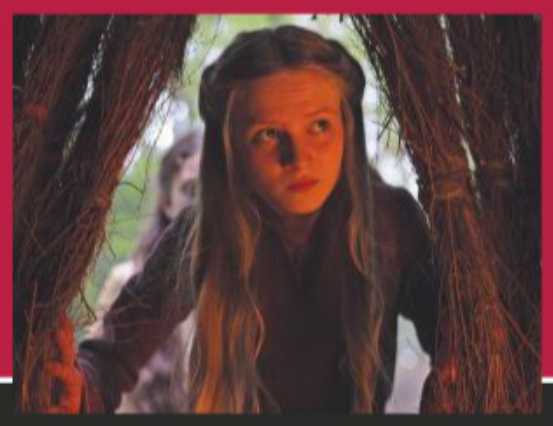
After his wife Margaery was killed in the wildfire explosion at the Sept, Cersei and Jaime's youngest son jumped to his death.

QUEEN'S LANDING

Cersei Lannister's fate has been the subject of speculation ever since a flashback scene in season five when the 10-year-old was told by the mystical Maggy the Frog that she would have three children and eventually be 'cast down'.

Since Cersei is currently pregnant with a fourth child by her brother Jaime, does it mean that her days are numbered?

'People will be surprised at every turn this season,' teases Lena Headey, who plays her. 'Cersei's motherhood is her biggest strength and also weakness. Her paranoia and great desperation are also weaknesses. But you simply have to admire a survivor like that. She absolutely refuses to let go.'



Whatever her character's fate, Headey says the best thing about the end of the show is being able to ditch the cropped blonde wig she has worn since season five, when Cersei's hair was cut off after she was forced to confess to adultery with her cousin Lancel.

'It's been a joy not to wear that wig any more. It was like an itchy turnip, and I couldn't wait to be rid of it,' she says. 'I would have burned it if I could.'

Joseph goes on a journey to get answers about his past

Stephen Graham as Joseph with Shea Michael Shaw as his son

Facing his DEMONS

Stephen Graham stars in Shane Meadows' harrowing drama about an alcoholic confronting his troubled childhood...

NEW DRAMA

The Virtues

Wednesday, C4 HD, 9pm

Stephen Graham is having a remarkable year. After his standout performance as ill-fated undercover cop John Corbett in Line of Duty, he is now heading the cast of C4's intense drama The Virtues.

Co-written by Shane Meadows and Jack Thorne, who Graham worked with on This Is England, the four-part series stars the 45-year-old as recovering alcoholic Joseph, who is still haunted by fractured memories of his traumatic childhood in the care system.

After he falls off the wagon when his ex-partner takes their son to live in Australia, he heads to Ireland to confront the demons from his past, try to reunite with his long-lost sister Anna (Helen Behan), and get some answers.

'When Joseph's son is taken away from him, it destroys him. He starts drinking and repressed memories begin coming back,' explains Graham, who played skinhead Combo in This Is England.

FLASHBACKS

'After his boy is taken away, he is reminded of how Anna was also ripped away from him, so when he sees her again his emotions flood back. He starts piecing together his life and trying to retrace his steps to discover why he's become such a broken man.'

For Graham, whose credits include Al Capone in Boardwalk Empire, the role of Joseph is a huge departure and one of the most challenging he has ever played.

'Normally, people perceive my characters as violent or aggressive villains,' he says. 'But Joseph is a quiet, gentle everyman and a rather sensitive soul who doesn't really understand what has happened to him. I'm very proud of The Virtues. It's a very powerful piece.'

The drama is inspired by a dark incident in Meadows' own life (see panel, below) and the writer-director personally approached Graham and asked him to play the role of Joseph several years ago.

'I felt an obligation, compassion and a duty of care to make sure I got it right,' says Graham. 'For someone like Shane, who I admire so much, to come to me was a privilege. You feel a connection when someone gives you their heart in your hands.'

DARK DISCOVERIES

Despite the dark subject matter, the Liverpudlian actor says he loved being part of Meadows' semi-improvised working style again.

'Working with Shane spoils you,' he says. 'He was the first person to make me believe in my own ability. You feel like you are Charlie in the chocolate factory.'

While he hopes that The Virtues will strike a chord with viewers, Graham is still reeling from the impact that Line of Duty has had.

'It has gone proper nuts!' he laughs. 'I've had people who have never been in my audience demographic coming up, saying, "I didn't want you to die!" It's been lovely to be able to show what I can do with a great character.'

Graham will next be seen in Sky One comedy Code 404 with Daniel Mays, and then with Robert De Niro and Al Pacino in Martin Scorsese's The Irishman on Netflix. But he still has to pinch himself over his incredible rise to fame.

'It has taken me a long time to get rid of that working-class mentality where I am waiting for someone to say, "Excuse me mate, you don't belong here,"' he says. 'Never in my wildest dreams did I think I'd be on set with De Niro and Pacino.'

Writer Shane Meadows

Meadows' pain

The Virtues* has been brewing in film-maker Shane Meadows' mind for the best part of a decade. Inspired by a difficult period in his past, he describes it as one of his most personal pieces of work to date.

'The acorn for Joseph's journey was something in my childhood that I had fragmented memories of, but I didn't understand what had happened until I got to about 40,' he reveals.

'I tried to trace the person who'd done it, and I was like a cross between Travis Bickle and Columbo. But I knew that if I confronted him and he smirked, I'd react violently. So I rang Jack Thorne and talked about making a drama about it instead, which was probably far healthier.'

Bradley Freegard, Eve Myles and Mark Lewis Jones

Leap of Faith

Eve Myles returns in the second series of the gripping Welsh crime thriller

NEW DRAMA

Un Bore Mercher (Keeping Faith)

Sun, S4C HD, 9pm, & BBC iPlayer

It's no secret that Torchwood star Eve Myles was thinking of giving up acting until she landed the role of Faith Howells in this Welsh thriller.

It became the surprise word-of-mouth hit of 2018, breaking BBC iPlayer records and making Faith's yellow mac a must-have fashion item.

The first series saw solicitor Faith being drawn into a web of conspiracy when her husband Evan (Bradley Freegard) went missing following the birth of their third child. This week, the second eight-part series hits BBC iPlayer and S4C. It's in Welsh with English subtitles, while the English version will be shown on BBC1 later this year.

We caught up with Myles, 40, to hear what's in store...

The first series ended on a cliffhanger. Where does this series begin? We start 18 months later. Evan has left his family in a mess and all of a sudden the world becomes a very dangerous place. Faith tries to normalise things. But actually things escalate and that's where the drama lies.

Do we find out where Evan has been and why he walked out on his family? Yes, there are lots of flashbacks. We don't forget what's happened in series one. That's what makes moving forward so difficult for Faith. There is so much pain in this series. I had to cry on screen a lot and I have pinch marks on my legs from making myself cry!

Does Faith still have feelings for her lover, Steve (Mark Lewis Jones)? Steve is the antithesis of Evan. He represents safety and hope and strength. Those things are very attractive when you find yourself at a very low ebb and in a huge crisis.

Is it tough doing emotional scenes with Bradley Freegard, who is your husband in real life, too? It's horrific, so you've got to have a laugh and a giggle, too. But I love working with Brad. He's a brilliant actor and I trust him implicitly.

You had to learn Welsh to play Faith. Do you find yourself speaking it more at home now? Yes, it's nice to be able to speak it with my daughters. I didn't have the opportunity to speak Welsh as a child and I'm proud to have that ability now at such a late age.

Are you still surprised by the incredible reaction to the show? I knew from day one we had a very special script. But, yes, we have an amazing fanbase. Last Summer, there were hundreds of people walking past Faith's house by the estuary where we film in Laugharne, all wearing their yellow macs!

Future of

NEW DRAMA
Years and Years
Tuesday, BBC1 HD, 9pm

Former Doctor Who showrunner Russell T Davies peeks into the future again this week – but in a very different kind of TV drama.

In new BBC1 series Years and Years, Davies imagines the next 15 years of UK history through the eyes of an ordinary British family in an ambitious social drama starring Rory Kinnear, Russell Tovey and Emma Thompson.

The story focuses on the Lyons family, who live in Manchester, and begins in the present day before quickly skipping forward five years to see what the future holds for the four Lyons siblings – Daniel, Stephen, Rosie and Edith – who form the focal point of the drama.

As we pick things up, Daniel (Russell Tovey) is getting married to Ralph, Stephen (Rory Kinnear) is worried about his kids, Rosie (Ruth Madeley) is chasing a new man, and Edith (Jessica Hynes) is set to head back home after years away. Presiding over them all is their grandmother, the sharp-tongued Muriel (Anne Reid).

THE LONG VIEW

In this week's first episode, their disparate lives converge following a devastating global event that sends shock waves around the world.

'It's the story of one family set against the backdrop of a quickly changing world,' explains Davies. 'We see all these major events from the Lyons' point of view. There are dark moments, but it's also full of hope. The point is that life carries on, no matter what happens.'

Among the seismic political conflicts is the increasing global rivalry between the US and China and the dramatic consequences of Britain's withdrawal from Europe.

'The world is getting hotter, faster and madder, and we see politics, technology and distant wars affecting the Lyons family in their day-to-day lives,' says Davies.

The drama also follows the rise of ruthless MP Vivienne Rook, a celebrity-turned-populist politician, played by Emma Thompson. 'She strikes a chord with the British people,' reveals Davies. 'She's a rebel, a trickster and a terror.'

Vivienne comes into contact with the Lyons family over the course of the series, but at first they have more pressing concerns – especially when events in the Ukraine cause thousands of refugees to arrive in Manchester.

The influx of people means that Daniel, a housing officer, needs to find homes for them, while he also gets intimately involved with one of the refugees.

reveals Tovey. 'Daniel finds him fascinating and incredibly sexy. He's in a terrible quandary because he's with Ralph, but he's falling in love with another man.'

Meanwhile, the eldest sibling, Stephen, is anxious about his teenage daughter's interest in rapidly advancing technology.

'Stephen feels like part of society is spiralling away from him,' says Kinnear. 'He also feels partly responsible for allowing his daughter to use a screen from an early age.'

Davies says he had great fun predicting how the world may look in 15 years' time – from imagining different types of political turmoil to radical new technology.

'We've tried to keep it subtle,' he explains. 'There's no point in trying to tell a story if the audience is distracted by some strange invention from the future.'

Countdown to murder

A family gathering leads to a fatal shooting in a gripping new murder mystery

NEW DRAMA

15 Days

Mon-Thu, Channel 5 HD, 9pm

The crack of a gunshot is the dramatic opening to 15 Days, a chilling new four-part crime thriller. The action then rewinds 15 days to reveal the events leading up to a brutal murder at a family farm in Wales.

Showing over four consecutive nights, the drama follows four estranged siblings – Gareth, Nia, Rhys and Sara – as they reunite to scatter their mother's ashes and find out who will inherit the farm. As the story unfolds, secrets and betrayals are revealed as the shocked siblings learn the contents of the will.

Former Coronation Street actress Catherine Tyldesley plays Sara, who has a young daughter but is stuck in a loveless marriage to Michael (Silent Witness' David Caves).

FAMILY VALUES

'The family have come back because their mother has passed away and they're all eager to see what's happening with the will,' says Tyldesley. 'Sara had a very close relationship with her father, who died five years earlier, and she believes that she may well inherit the family farm now her mum has passed away. It has extreme sentimental value to her, whereas with some of the other family members, it's just about the money.'

Coronation Street's Eva Price

TWISTS AND TURNS

Sara's troubled brother Rhys (Tom Rhys Harries) turns up at the farm with his pregnant girlfriend, Joy (Kezrena James), while her other brother, the short-tempered Gareth (Geraint Morgan) arrives with his teenage daughter (Gabrielle Creevy) and second wife Moira (Frances Grey), who don't see eye to eye.

Meanwhile, Sara's manipulative sister Nia (Mali Tudno Jones) is having an affair with Michael.

'He is a very controlling person and Sara's aware that she can't trust him,' says Tyldesley. 'There are various reasons for any of the characters to have committed the murder – it could be anybody. There are so many twists. I really hope people are going to be hooked.'

Because the drama is set in Wales, Tyldesley had to adopt a Welsh accent for the part.

'My little boy [four-year-old Alfie] practised with me and his Welsh accent is phenomenal – it puts mine to shame,' she laughs. 'But I think I drove my husband slightly mad because I was constantly talking with a Welsh accent. He kept saying, "I think you've got it now. It's fine!"'

The role of Sara also sees Tyldesley look completely different from her years playing Eva Price in Coronation Street.

'It's great because what you want as an actress is variation,' she says. 'Eva was full-on TOWIE glam, so it was nice to strip it back. I had blonde hair as Eva, but I always knew I'd go back to my natural colour one day.'

Angel of death

An ER doctor leads a deadly double life by helping people to die...

NEW DRAMA

Mary Kills People

Tuesday, More4 HD, 9pm

The controversial subject of assisted suicide lies at the heart of this drama that's been described as a cross between Dexter and Weeds.

The six-part Canadian series follows ER doctor Mary Harris (Caroline Dhavernas), a staunch supporter of the right to die, who runs a secret business illegally helping terminally ill people to end their lives.

With her business partner Des (Richard Short), Mary gives her willing patients a cocktail of drugs in exchange for cash. But the moral implications of her actions soon become clear in the opening episode when Mary's injection fails to work on an ailing former athlete – and she ends up smothering him with a pillow.

As the single mother starts to arouse suspicion, can she prevent her double life from being exposed? We asked Dhavernas to tell us more…

What attracted you to the series? I thought the subject matter was important and interesting. It's a social debate we should have more often. And I love the fact the series has drama, comedy and elements of a thriller.

How would you describe Mary? She's been through things in her past that have convinced her that people should have the right to choose. It's a role that soothes her somehow. She's not only doing this out of empathy, there's another reason underneath.

What is her relationship like with Des? He has his own reasons for what they are doing. He's a recovering heroin addict and an ex-doctor and has a very complicated life. They certainly can't talk to anyone else about what they do, because it's illegal. So she leads a double life.

The show's title caused quite a stir when the series was shown in Canada... You can't go halfway. If you're going to talk about death, you might as well say it in the title. I love the title. It intrigued me when I read the script. It's dark humour and I think it's pretty funny.

You starred as shrink Alana Bloom in Hannibal. How do the two shows compare? Hannibal's world was very operatic and heightened. Mary Kills People is set in a more realistic environment and I have more in common with Mary than Alana – not that I go around killing people!

NETFLIX See You Yesterday

NEW Genre: Time-travel drama
Available: Friday 17 May
Runs: 86min TVSW says: Sci-fi with a twist

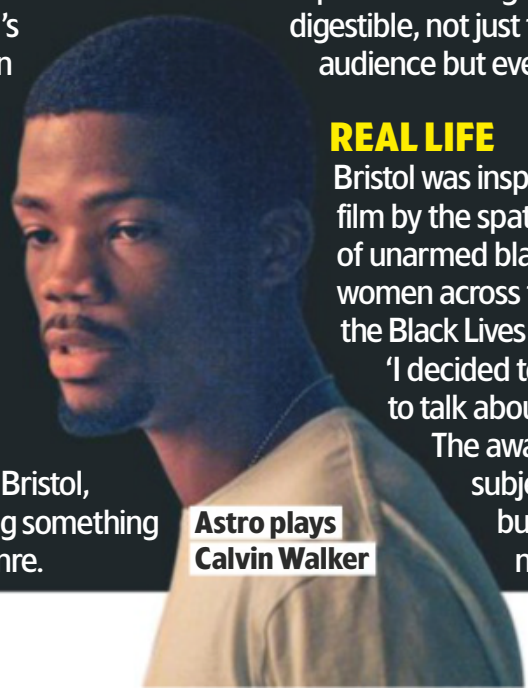
A time-travel adventure with a difference comes to Netflix this week in a new movie that blends sci-fi action with hard-hitting social issues.

See You Yesterday stars Eden Duncan-Smith and Danté Crichlow as Brooklyn-based best friends CJ and Sebastian, who bond over a love of science – with CJ wanting to be an astrophysicist, and Sebastian aiming to come up with 200 inventions.

The school buddies spend every spare minute working on their latest creation: backpacks that enable time travel. But when CJ's older brother, Calvin (rapper Astro), is gunned down by the New York police, the teens decide to use their technology to go back in time and save Calvin's life.

The movie is the directorial debut of 31-year-old Stefon Bristol, who wanted to bring something new to the sci-fi genre.



Astro plays Calvin Walker

'I love superhero movies. I'll go to see the Avengers and Spider-Man, but when I leave the cinema, I feel empty,' he explains. 'I understand that people want escapism and spectacle and fun, but the question I had was, "How do I combine a Marvel film with a strong political message?"

'Escapism is great, but we have to face our problems head-on. I wanted to take an important message and make it digestible, not just for a black audience but everybody.'

REAL LIFE

Bristol was inspired to make the film by the spate of police killings of unarmed black men and women across the US that led to the Black Lives Matter movement.

'I decided to use time travel to talk about police brutality. The awareness of this subject is dying out, but the murders are not,' he adds.

Sebastian (Danté Crichlow) and CJ (Eden Duncan-Smith)

'Usually, when you see young black teens on screen, their stories are about gang violence, drug use, or somebody's girl is pregnant. Those are not the stories I want to tell. Young black people's experiences in America are much more than that. Beside, who wouldn't want to watch brilliant black science geeks from Brooklyn master the ways of time travel? We've never seen a film like this before.'

The film gave Bristol the chance to work with his movie idol, director Spike Lee, whose production company backed the project.

'I remember being 18 years old when Do the Right Thing came on TV,' he recalls. 'So I watched it and, honestly, it changed my life. I knew from that moment that I wanted to be a film-maker.'

See You Yesterday isn't Spike Lee's only Netflix project. A second series of She's Gotta Have It comes to the streaming service on 24 May, and he is now filming Da 5 Bloods about African-American Vietnam veterans who search for the remains of a fellow soldier.

MENTORING

However, when it came to making See You Yesterday, Lee says he was happy to take a back seat.

'I was fairly hands-off. I came on set the first day and they never saw me after that,' he laughs. 'It's important for young film-makers to learn how to do things on their own. They've got to go through the fire. My only advice was, "Put the work in – and don't mess up!"'

Walliams goes wild

David Walliams joins Bear Grylls for a gruelling survival challenge

NEW SURVIVAL

Bear's Mission with David Walliams

Tuesday, ITV HD, 9pm

After swimming the English Channel and the length of the River Thames for Sport Relief, David Walliams takes on another tough outdoors challenge this week, when he joins Bear Grylls for a heart-stopping adventure in the wilds of Devon.

The one-off programme sees Walliams follow in the footsteps of Gareth Southgate and Anthony Joshua, as Grylls tests the limits of his endurance with a series of adrenaline-fuelled tasks, beginning with a 200ft descent down a crumbling rock face into a reservoir below.

CHALLENGING

'I don't like heights – they make me feel dizzy,' reveals Walliams. 'You think, one little mistake and that's it. The cliff was so slippery. I wasn't quite as brave as I wanted to be and I was a bit tearful at one point – but I didn't give up.'

During the course of his mission, the comedian and children's author admits to Grylls that he has never owned a pair of walking boots and can't read a map.

'I don't own a cagoule, I don't go on camping holidays, I don't get up and think I'll do a marathon in the woods,'

Victoria's Palace

Monday, ITV HD, 9pm

Sir Trevor McDonald and Julie Etchingham go behind the scenes at Buckingham Palace to learn about the private life of Queen Victoria. They reveal how she transformed the monarchy and turned the iconic building into a home after moving there as an 18 year old just three weeks into her reign.

Showing as part of the BBC's Mental Health season, The Great British Bake Off winner Nadiya Hussain opens up about the battle she has fought with anxiety since childhood. She allows cameras to film her as she undergoes therapy sessions to get to the root of the problem and learn coping strategies.

David Harewood: Psychosis and Me

Thursday, BBC2 HD, 9pm

Actor David Harewood suffered a psychotic episode at the age of 23, and was sectioned and taken into hospital. In this programme, showing as part of the BBC's Mental Health season, he looks back on his crisis, talks to people who helped him, meets others who are experiencing similar problems, and spends time with the emergency NHS mental health team in his home city of Birmingham, as they respond to calls to treat people in distress.

laughs Walliams, who has a six-year-old son, Alfred.

'I like being outdoors and having a cup of tea, but there's a big difference between doing that and being in Dartmoor National Park when it's pouring down with rain.'

The gruelling challenge also sees Walliams wading across a fast-flowing river, abseiling down a sheer cliff face and climbing a precarious ladder to the top of an abandoned viaduct.

David and Bear head outdoors

However, the worst moment came when the 47 year old was forced to sample some of Grylls' cooking.

'Bear made me eat a barbecued rat,' he winces. 'He cooked it first but I would not recommend it. He was saying, "Oh, it is delicious, it's wonderful." But it wasn't. There is a reason why we don't eat rats…

'But I suppose I got my just desserts. Having written a story called Ratburger, I ended up having to eat one myself.'

CANDID TALK

Their trek in the wild also gave the two men plenty of time to talk about personal issues, and the programme sees Walliams open up to Grylls about what it's like working with Simon Cowell, his mum's pride when he was given an OBE, and his battles with depression.

'There have been periods throughout my life where I've been very down, but I'm certainly in a better place now,' he reveals. 'One great thing about becoming a father is that your whole life starts revolving around your child and you stop dwelling on your own problems so much.'

NEW HEALTH

Louis Theroux: Mothers on the Edge

Sunday, BBC2 HD, 9pm

It's meant to be love at first sight, but for many new mothers, having a baby can be a time of severe stress and anxiety, sometimes triggering psychiatric issues.

In the UK, around one in five new mothers experience a mental-health problem before their baby's first birthday. Yet the issue isn't properly understood by most, and rarely discussed.

This week, as part of the BBC's Mental Health season, Louis Theroux hopes to shed light on serious conditions ranging from depression and anxiety to postpartum psychosis, which can cause delusions, hallucinations and irrational thoughts.

'We're told that becoming a mother is a cause for celebration and unalloyed happiness, but it can be more complicated than that,' says father-of-three Theroux.

'Sometimes new mums feel overbearing pressure to have feelings of love that might not be there in the way they want them to be. If we can help shed light on that, and encourage people to open up, it can only be a positive thing.'

DISPELLING BELIEFS

In Mothers on the Edge, Theroux meets staff and patients at two specialist psychiatric units where mums live on site with their babies while undergoing treatment.

At Melbury Lodge in Winchester, Lisa has experienced a series of psychotic episodes since the birth of her third child, Isabella. Meanwhile at Bethlem Royal Hospital, London, Catherine is under section after she tried to take an overdose and is now 'learning to love' Jake, six months.

Theroux hopes that sharing their stories will dispel misconceptions about postpartum psychosis.

'It can affect mums with no previous history of mental illness, but with treatment, it can also quickly disappear,' he says. 'Also, if a mum has an intrusive thought about harming her baby, it doesn't mean she will. In fact, it's testament to her goodwill that she is troubled by the thought and wouldn't want to act on it.'

BlacKkKlansman

Director Spike Lee strikes black gold with a stranger-than-fiction true crime story

REAL-LIFE DRAMA

Friday, Sky Premiere HD, 12noon & 8pm; Sky True Stories HD, 5.35pm ★★★★

Hollywood gadfly and goad for more than three decades, Spike Lee is at his provocative best with this gob-smacking true story about the early-1970s black undercover cop who infiltrated the Ku Klux Klan.

John David Washington, son of Denzel Washington (star of Lee's 1990s films Mo' Better Blues and Malcolm X) plays the officer, Ron Stallworth, whose first groundbreaking achievement is to become in 1973 the first African-American to join the Colorado Springs Police Department.

He gets sent undercover to report on a Black Power rally at the local college, where he meets and falls for student activist Patrice (Laura Harrier), but it is when he fools the Ku Klux Klan over the phone into believing he is white that things really turn outlandish.

Of course, he can't turn up for a meeting with the white supremacists himself so he sends his Jewish police colleague Flip Zimmerman (Adam Driver) to impersonate him in the flesh. Ron even manages on the phone to bamboozle the Klan's Grand Wizard, David Duke (Topher Grace), but when the pair uncover a violent plot, the double deception becomes even more dangerous.

Lee lets rip with this bizarre story, balancing intrigue and suspense with mocking comedy and scorching satire. He doesn't let Hollywood off the hook either, reminding us throughout the film of cinema's power to shape beliefs, witnessed here by DW Griffith's controversial silent epic The Birth of a Nation, enduring classic Gone with the Wind, and some 1970s-era Blaxploitation movies as well.

But Lee's most incendiary touch is to draw a series of telling, often gasp-inducing parallels with Donald Trump's present-day America. 2018, 15, 135MIN

CRIME THRILLER

The Clovehitch Killer

Sunday, Sky Premiere HD, 10pm ★★★

Sixteen-year-old Tyler Burnside (Charlie Plummer) leads a boringly wholesome Middle American life: church on Sundays, prayers at mealtimes and attendance at the Scout troop led by his pillar-of-the-community father (Dylan McDermott). But a chance discovery leads him to suspect that his father may be the serial killer responsible for the decade-old murders of 10 women in their town.

This crime thriller is far from the first movie to find horror lurking in American suburbia, but it doesn't plunge you into a nightmare right away. Instead, adolescent embarrassment is the keynote as Tyler begins snooping into his father's hidden life, helped by local misfit Kassie (Madisen Beaty).

Gradually, however, the squirming gives way to chills and growing suspense. Admittedly, the early stages of the teens' investigation carry a whiff of Nancy Drew and their later actions push the bounds of credulity, but Plummer and McDermott are both excellent. 2016, 18, 105MIN

Paula Hawkins' best-selling amnesia thriller proves a gripping psychological mystery on screen, despite a change of setting from London to New York and a heroine who is far prettier than the book's alcoholic sad sack. A big hit on home soil, this Chinese animated fantasy is deeply steeped in the country's myths and folklore but clearly owes a large debt to Japan's Studio Ghibli as well. It takes a while to grasp the movie's slippery fable, a tale of transformation and sacrifice involving a 16-year-old girl from a parallel spirit world who falls in love with a human boy. But the supernatural realm's characters are fascinatingly quirky and the animation is ravishing. 2016, PG, 106MIN

Inspired by a real-life mystery, this period thriller stars Gerard Butler, Peter Mullan and Connor Swindells as a trio of Scottish lighthouse keepers who get more than they bargain for after they turn up for duty on a remote island in the Outer Hebrides. There is a touch of Scandi noir about the ensuing drama, and the tension is as slow-burning as a lighthouse wick. 15, 107MIN

Premier League FINALE

THE MAIN EVENT

Former Everton and Wales goalkeeper Neville Southall hands out his end-of-season awards

Neville Southall

LIVE FOOTBALL

Sunday, Sky Sports Premier League HD & Sky Sports Main Event HD, kick-offs 3pm

One of the most exciting Premier League seasons in years reaches a climax on Sunday when the champions are crowned and any remaining issues of relegation and European places will be settled.

We asked former goalkeeper Neville Southall, who won two league titles with Everton in the 1980s, to look back on an eventful season…

Liverpool's Mohamed Salah

BEST TEAM

'It's very hard to defend a league title, but Manchester City have really impressed me as they've competed with Liverpool at the top of the table. Pep Guardiola's side are super-talented, but they also work really hard. Players like Bernardo Silva put in a huge amount of graft.'

BEST MANAGER

'Mauricio Pochettino is a class act. He has built a Tottenham side that everyone loves to watch. It has the flair of the old Spurs teams but with added steel. He's had to play most of his home games at Wembley, which hasn't been easy, and has been without Harry Kane at times, but he's still achieved some great results.'

Manchester City have impressed

BEST PLAYER

'Liverpool defender Virgil van Dijk has been outstanding. He's quick, brave, powerful and good in the air. He doesn't over-elaborate, but can also play when he wants. He's the closest thing to an ideal centrehalf that the Premier League has seen.'

BEST GOAL

'It probably has to be Mohamed Salah's strike for Liverpool against Chelsea, which was pretty special, but as a goalkeeper I think the overall standard in the Premier League has been very disappointing. Keepers seem to parry the ball when it's easier to catch, though I do like Man City's Ederson. He makes saves with the minimum of fuss.'

Paul Pogba of Manchester United

BIGGEST DISAPPOINTMENT

'Paul Pogba has a lot of talent, but as soon as something goes wrong, he throws his toys out of the pram. United fans expect their midfielders to be inspirational, like Bryan Robson and Roy Keane, but Pogba doesn't measure up. He cost £90million, so the least he could do is put a bit of effort in.'

BIGGEST CONTROVERSY

'I'm not a fan of VAR. I don't want a match stopped every five minutes to check a decision. These things even themselves out over a season, so let's just get on with it.'

BEST MOMENT

'I loved watching Cardiff City boss Neil Warnock staring down the match officials after his side lost to Chelsea. He knew he would have been fined if he'd opened his mouth. At a time when a lot of football managers are like bland TV presenters, Warnock is a breath of fresh air.'

European Champions Cup Final

Sat, C4 HD & BT Sport 2 HD, kick-off 5pm

Two-time champions Saracens will be seeking a third win in four years when they play holders Leinster in the showpiece at Newcastle's St James' Park. The Irish side defeated Sarries in last season's quarter-finals and boast this season's joint top try-scorer, Sean Cronin, as they aim to become the first team in the competition to lift the trophy five times. Saracens' George Kruis made his 50th European appearance in the semi-final win over Munster, while Billy Vunipola will be wanting to put recent controversy behind him.

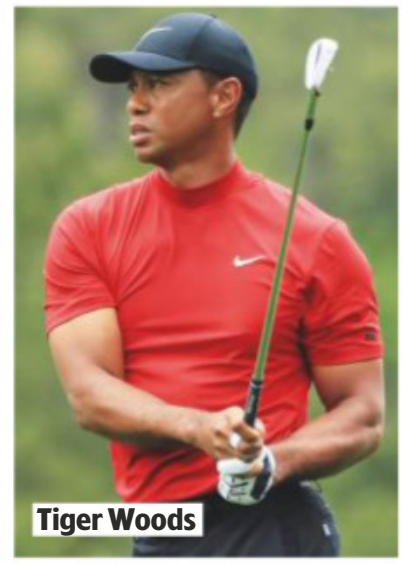
LIVE CYCLING

Giro d'Italia

From Saturday, Eurosport 1 HD

Britain's Vuelta a España champion Simon Yates, riding for Team Mitchelton-Scott, is one of the favourites for this year's Giro after leading for much of the 2018 tour. In the absence of Geraint Thomas and reigning champion Chris Froome, who are focusing on the Tour de France, Colombian Egan Bernal and Italian Gianni Moscon will lead the Team Ineos challenge. The 21-stage race covers a total distance of 3,578.8km, with the start in Bologna on Saturday and the finish in Verona on Sunday 2 June.

Britain's Simon Yates



Tiger Woods

LIVE GOLF

PGA Championship

From Thu, Sky Sports Golf HD & Sky Sports Main Event HD

Fresh from his win at the Masters, Tiger Woods will challenge for his fifth PGA Championship title this week at New York's Bethpage Black Course. Woods claimed his 15th major at Augusta. In 2002, he won the US Open on the challenging Long Island course, and he will be up against defending champion Brooks Koepka.

Ferrari driver Sebastian Vettel

LIVE MOTORSPORT

F1: Spanish Grand Prix

Sunday, Sky Sports F1 HD, race starts 2.10pm

The 2019 season comes to Europe for the first time, in Barcelona, where Ferrari flattered to deceive in pre-season testing. Sebastian Vettel and Charles Leclerc are already playing catch-up following title leader Valtteri Bottas' victory in Baku, where he and Lewis Hamilton set a record for Mercedes of four consecutive one-twos at the start of a season.

LIVE PREMIER LEAGUE

Final Day

Sunday, Sky Sports Main Event HD, Sky Sports Mix HD & Sky Sports Premier League HD, kick-offs 3pm

The penultimate Premier League games had yet to be played as TV&Satellite Week went to press, with the title race on a knife-edge with Manchester City and Liverpool battling it out at the top of the table and Brighton and Cardiff City seeking to escape the drop.

Sky Sports hadn't finalised its live coverage plans, but Sunday's key fixtures include Brighton v Manchester City, with Sergio Agüero and Raheem Sterling looking to help City finish their league season on a high against Chris Hughton's struggling Seagulls. Meanwhile, Jürgen Klopp's men will be at home for Liverpool v Wolves as the Reds sign off in front of the Anfield faithful.

Emotions could also be running high at Old Trafford for Manchester United v Cardiff City as both sides conclude difficult seasons. Could this be a second farewell to Manchester for Paul Pogba?

FIRST LOOK

The Boys

Jack Quaid heads up a darkly comic spin on the superhero genre...

Jack Quaid and Karl Urban as the gang's Hughie and Billy

Here's a peek at Amazon Prime Video's quirky drama The Boys, airing from Friday 26 July.

Based on Garth Ennis and Darick Robertson's comic books and co-written by Supernatural's Eric Kripke, the eight-part series follows vigilantes The Boys, who attempt to expose the truth about adored superheroes The Seven, who are abusing their powers.

Jack Quaid plays Hughie, The Boys' leader, who teams up with Mother's Milk (Laz Alonso), Billy Butcher (Karl Urban), Frenchie (Tomer Capon), and Female (Karen Fukuhara), while Simon Pegg plays Hughie's father Dougie.

POWER CORRUPTS

The series, produced by Seth Rogen and Evan Goldberg, sees Antony Starr play Homelander, the leader of The Seven, which includes Starlight (Erin Moriarty), Queen Maeve (Dominique McElligott), A-Train (Jessie T Usher), The Deep (Chace Crawford) and Black Noir (Nathan Mitchell). Elisabeth Shue is Madelyn Stillwell, who works for Vought, a conglomerate that helps cover up The Seven's deeds.

'What if superheroes really did exist?' says Quaid. 'They wouldn't be saviours of humanity. When you have powers, absolute power corrupts absolutely. This show takes a realistic approach – and a more depraved approach…'

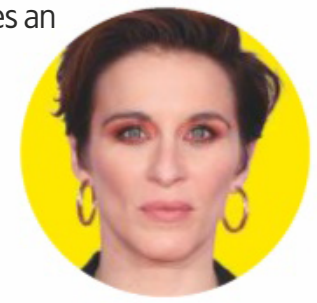
WHAT'S NEXT FOR...

Damian Lewis

In History's Damian Lewis: Spy Wars, an eight-part series airing this Autumn, the actor explores real-life stories of espionage operations from the Cold War to the War on Terror, and even talks to former spies.

Vicky McClure

The actress will star in Alex Rider, an adaptation of Anthony Horowitz's novels about a teen (Otto Farrant) who becomes an undercover MI6 agent. Stephen Dillane and Andrew Buchan will also feature.

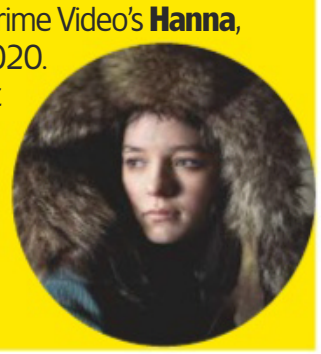


Craig Parkinson

McClure's former Line of Duty co-star appears alongside Edward Holcroft in Julian Fellowes' Netflix period drama The English Game, which airs in 2020 and follows the origins of football across the class divide.

Coming Back

Esmé Creed-Miles reprises her role as a survivalist in a second series of Amazon Prime Video's Hanna, airing in 2020. 'I can't wait to explore fresh terrain for her,' says writer David Farr.



IN PRODUCTION...

Liar

Check out these first shots from the second series of ITV thriller Liar, which is filming now. Joanne Froggatt and Ioan Gruffudd return as teacher Laura and rapist Andrew (far right), while Katherine Kelly (inset) joins the cast as DI Karen Renton, who's investigating Andrew's murder. 'We're delighted it's back,' says Jack Williams, who pens the series with brother Harry. 'You'll want to know what happens next.'

Next week On sale Tuesday 14 May

The FA Cup Final

As Manchester City and Watford head to Wembley for the final, who will emerge victorious?

Gentleman Jack

Suranne Jones plays real-life 19th-century lesbian landowner Anne Lister in this period drama.

Game of Thrones

After eight series of action, the Sky Atlantic juggernaut bows out in a spell-binding finale.

What/If

Renée Zellweger stars in a Netflix series about a woman who makes a young couple a risky offer.
